Making Sri Lanka the wonder of Asia

The Colombo city skyline is fast changing with tourism and city development playing a lead role in taking the country towards becoming the wonder of Asia. Sri Lanka is taking a leaf from development in Dubai, Singapore and some other countries which developed in the last three decades.

Slums and pavement hawkers are becoming things of the past as they are being cleared and given quality alternative houses and areas, way beyond their dreams.

A new city is to be built in the Galle Face area adjoining the new Colombo South harbour reclaiming land from the sea, similar to the artificially created Palm Islands in Dubai.

Sri Lanka will follow this model and is planning to have nearly 400 acres of reclaimed land which in turn would be offered to the leisure sector and property developers to construct mixed development projects. Global entertainment companies are expected to setup theme parks, night entertainment and many other recreation facilities.

Relocating and providing quality alternative housing is one of the priorities of the Government for people occupying houses illegally, especially in and around the Slave Island areas.

Slums to disappear

Deputy Project Director, Urban Development Authority, H. A. Dayananda said that under the directions of their new Chairman, Janaka kuru-kulasuriya a massive development plan is unfolding for the Slave Island area. "The slums in the area are being cleared and the dwellers will be provided alternative houses in Dematagoda," he said.

These slum dwellers stayed in small huts sharing one make shift bathroom, kitchen and a water tap with three or four other families. "The 320 new houses provided for them have two rooms, a verandah, a toilet and a separate kitchen with electricity and water.

He said 1,000 houses were being built at Dematagoda to relocate people now in temporary shelters.

After clearing the Slave Island area from the back of the Air Force grounds up to Beira Lake, this area would be given to both local and international companies for high rise buildings and for other recreation facilities. "A walk way for the public too would be built and several super markets, toy side food outlets and other forms of entertainment activities would be put into place by both the Government and the private sector," he said.

The D. R. Wijewardane Mawatha area would be converted to a more up market tourism area and all the warehouses adjoining the Convention Centre are to be relocated. "Beira Lake would be opened up for water sports and soon people would see water jets, ...P2 → banana boats and pontoons with heaps of locals and foreigners using them," he said.

The Maradana/ Panchikawatte area too is under the focus of development with people living in slums to be relocated to condominiums. He said that they would not relocate these slum dwellers until such time the housing complex is completed.

The new Art Centre coming up in Town Hall with the assistance of the Chinese Government, the refurbishment of the country's oldest art centre the Tower Hall, and opening of the Galle Face area and Nawam Mawatha areas to the public will enable people to relax in a free and welcome atmosphere.

Havelock City is the largest residential and commercial development project presently undertaken in Sri Lanka by the private sector, adding more colour and dignity to the city of Colombo.

This will be linked to waterways with tenders already called to start boat services.

Govt. offices to move out

One of the other key developments undertaken by the UDA is the new office complex they are building in Battaramulla. "Our prime objective of this 13 door complex project is to enable government institutions located in the commercial city of Colombo to move to this complex in Sethsiripaya so that people would not have to run everywhere to get their work done," he said.

In addition this move will save millions to the government by way of rentals that are being paid to the private sector as rent.

The Colombo Katunayake Highway starting from Peliyagoda and now nearing completion would provide a vital link to the proposed development taking place in the city. Project Director M.P.K.L. Gunaratne told the Sunday Observer that the travel time from Peliyagoda to the airport would be reduced to 20 minutes as against over one hour it takes at present.

"This will be the icing on the cake for the development of Colombo City and one of the most important components in making Sri Lanka the wonder of Asia.

Army Special Forces praised for demining seabed

Villagers and the fisherfolk of Mullaitivu praised the Special Forces of the Sri Lanka Army for having taken timely action to clear the seabed of mines and other ordinances, reports from Mullaitivu said yesterday.

There was the possibility of these unexploded mines and artillery shells being washed ashore or getting entangled in nets posing a grave danger to civilians.

The SF Commander in Mullaitivu Maj. Gen. Prasanna Silva said that following the advice of Defence Secretary Gotabaya Rajapaksa, Army Commander Lt. General Jagath Jayasuriya had instructed that Special Forces personnel, trained in underwater operations be deployed to carry out the de-mining of the seabed.

They had been successful in de-mining to a depth of 150 meters up to distance of two kilometres from the coast along six kilometres of the coastline," he said.

Maj. Gen. Silva said: "We have deployed over 500 Field Engineers attached to the SLA to carry out the mine clearing operations on land manually. They also carried out the de-mining mechanically.

We have succeeded in clearing the Mullaitivu town and parts of Odusuddan, Mulliyawalai, Thunukkai and Manthai East so that the IDPs could be resettled. The biggest challenge that we are yet to confront is de-mining the areas of the final confrontation with the LTTE such as Pudu Mathalang, Pudukududirruppu and Vellamulivaikkal which are full of unexploded explosive devices of all kinds," the SF Commander for Mullaitivu said.

Sources in Mullaitivu said that along with the SLA Field Engineers the UK based Mine Advisory Group, the Indian based Sarvatra, the Swiss Foundation for De-mining (FSD) were also assisting in the mine clearing operations. Source:The Island

National Mine Center to handle Mine clearing in the North

The Government of Sri Lanka is now implementing a humanitarian demining programme with a target of achieving mine threat free Sri Lanka by end of 2020. The government decided to set up a National Mine Action Centre to coordinate and fast tract the de-mining process. The Government coordinates and manages the demining programme, through the Ministry of Economic Development with the mine action operators, Donor Agencies and UN organizations.

Presidential Task Force for Resettlement, Development and Security in the Northern Province acts as the decision making body on Northern programme through a temporary unit in collaboration with respective Government Agents. In this exercise, UNDP and UNICEF provided technical assistance to the Government to implement and coordinate the demining programme.

Over 26 years of armed conflict, land mines, unexploded ordinances (UXOs) and improvised explosives devices (IEDs) which have been laid by the terrorists constituted a significant impediment to resettlement and development activities of the conflict affected areas.

Over 640 villages had been affected by these mines and it is estimated that about 1.5 Million mines have been laid underground. Out of this only 266,123 mines and UXOs have been cleared up-to- date. Over 4500 square kilo meters in particular in the Northern Province have been laid suspected as contaminated with mines and explosive remnants of war (ERW). Of which 1, 474 of square kilo meters have been cleared so far. Source: News.lk

Found: Sri Lankan primate thought to be extinct for 60 years

The Horton Plains slender loris was pictured in central Sri Lanka by the Zoological Society of London and Sri Lankan researchers. Photograph: London Zoo

A mysterious primate driven to the brink of extinction by Britain's taste for tea has been photographed for the first time. The Horton Plains slender loris, found only in Sri Lanka, was for more than 60 years believed to be extinct.

Then one was spotted fleetingly in 2002 when a light shone in its eyes and was reflected. Researchers have now managed to get the world's first pictures of the animal.

More than 1,000 night surveys were carried out in 120 forested regions by Sri Lankan researchers working in partnership with the Zoological Society of London (ZSL). The loris was found in half a dozen regions and researchers managed to capture three live specimens long enough to measure them.

The prime reason for the animal's rarity is the loss of its natural forest habitat, which has been largely destroyed by the drive to create tea plantations. The loss of land to other crops also contributed.

Estimates suggest there are just 100 left, putting it among the world's top five most threatened primates. But so little is known about the animal that numbers could be below 60 – which would make it the rarest species.

Dr Craig Turner of ZSL said: "There's been a lot of loss of habitat historically. Forest covered much of the south-west area of Sri Lanka, but it's been cleared for agriculture and tea estates.

"More recently they've been cleared for firewood collection. We are now left with a very few islands of forest that aren't connected.

"Because they [lorises] are so rare and because for many years they were thought to be extinct, virtually nothing is known about them. Source: www.Guardian.co.uk

Charity status revoked for funding LTTE

Ottawa based 'Tamil (Sri Lanka) Refugee-Aid Society' (TRAS) was revoked of its charitable registration with effect from July 17, 2010 for funding the LTTE.

The Canada Revenue Agency (CRA) responsible for administering tax laws for the Government of Canada and for most provinces and territories announced this decision July 19, 2010.

The CRA stated that the charity failed to maintain adequate control and direction over the use of its funds; improperly issued tax receipts on behalf of third parties; and provided funding to non-qualified donees outside Canada.

According to the findings, the Tamil charity has provided funds including $713,000 to an organization, which the CRA believes was operating as part of the support network for the LTTE, a listed entity under the United Nations Suppression of Terrorism Regulations and the Criminal Code of Canada. Source: Priu.gov.lk
